Transformative innovation in healthcare – Dr Iain Keith, Consultant Physician, Royal Alexandra Hospital, Paisley

Iron Triangle? What triangle! For the past few years I have been seen as a “disruptive innovator” in the areas I have worked in and I will share some of the insights I have learned with regards how to ask the right and wrong questions to try and change the organisation. Using data and questioning “why” can produce results which are more person centred with better outcomes, cost less and make the staff feel happy.
